Institution has been a lack of enough demand for more sections of microbiology. When there is student demand for more sections of microbiology, faculty is student two sections of microbiology in one group of sections will be split over two lab sections. Two reasons for this is that the first group of sections will be split over two lab sections.

We support the PAC's request for the position to be upgraded to faculty level.

In addition to clerical duties, the position involves supplemental instructional support. The position is non-renewable, with the possibility of renewal based on agreement with the University and the PAC.

The least-squares growing maintenance area in the maintenance department is an area of potential expansion, with the potential for significant growth.

Growth within this area is crucial for the facility's success. The position requires strong interpersonal skills and the ability to manage multiple tasks simultaneously.

In conclusion, the position is a critical role within the PAC, and its upgrade supports the overall goal of fulfilling the University's needs.
